International Business in the Pandemic and Post-Pandemic Era

Call for Papers

The sudden emergence of Covid-19 instantly changed the landscape of business (and conferences) around the world. Some of the features that characterize the business environment in the pandemic era include increasing uncertainty and complexity, the increasing importance of digital connectivity, changes in the international labor markets, or emerging geopolitical tensions. We already see first consequences on the firm-level, such as the resilience of GVCs becoming a leitmotif of international configuration and reconfiguration of MNEs’ activities, political discussions about regionalization and de-globalization, reshoring, and back-shoring strategies, to name just a few. With travelling often impossible and almost always limited, urgent calls for citizens to return to their home-countries, expatriates and management-teams of MNE’s also had to adjust their way of doing business and living. The current situation also has substantial impact on how we work and live as academics. The EIBA online conference 2020 is dedicated to discussing the trends, the challenges, and the new normal in the international economic, technological, and social environment, as well as implications for MNE’s and MNE employees.

To respond to the new situation, the EIBA 2020 annual conference will change, too. First, we will run the conference fully online. Second, and partially in response to the shift to online, we will adjust the structure of the conference as follows. The new structure, on the one hand, maintains most elements of a ‘normal’ EIBA conference, such as paper presentations, PDWs, or social interactions. On the other hand, the new digital conference environment creates new value for participants.

Day 1 – December 10th: PDWs, doctoral workshops, and one opening plenary panel.

Day 2 – December 11th: Paper presentations (competitive, interactive, poster) and panel sessions as in regular EIBA conferences.

Note that the online format of the sessions will be different from the traditional one to assure a high quality standard and a clear value-added for presenters and session guests (e.g., shorter presentations, session recordings, organized feedback, etc.).

Day 3 – December 12th: Special workshops on recent topics in IB teaching and research as well as academia in general by experts of the field. Workshops are free to all registered participants and will be recorded, so all EIBA registered participants can stream the sessions also at a later point in time.

Conference Tracks

We invite competitive and interactive papers, posters, as well as panel proposals on any of the EIBA2020 conference tracks for presentation at the second day of the conference. Competitive papers should be close to a publishable state, whilst interactive papers may be in an earlier stage of development. Posters can also present early stage research ideas.

Call for Competitive and Interactive Papers as well as Posters

All papers and posters will be evaluated in a double-blind review process. Copies of abstracts of accepted papers will be published in the EIBA2020 proceedings. Detailed guidelines for the submission of conference papers are available on the conference website: www.eiba.online.

Competitive (max. 10,000 words) and Interactive (max. 6,000 words) Papers and Posters (extended abstract, max. 1.500 words) have to be submitted via the conference website to one of the conference tracks.

The submission deadline for all competitive and interactive papers is Monday, September 14, 2020.

The deadline for all poster submissions is Monday, October 19, 2020.

Call for Panel Proposals

We also specifically welcome Panel proposals on contemporary issues belonging to every area of interest to IB scholars. To submit, please submit a proposal of max. 1,000 words using the submission system.

The submission deadline for panel proposals is Monday, September 14, 2020.

Call for Workshop Sessions

As a new addition to EIBA conferences, we invite proposals for workshops to be conducted at day 3 of the conference. Workshops focus on a specific field or topic associated with IB research, teaching, or administration, and should help participants to develop in the respective field. Examples could be “Teaching Online”, “State of the Art in Research Area XY”, research methods workshops, workshops focusing on media management, or any other topic of interest to a relevant segment of the EIBA audience. The specific set-up (time, length, session structure, degree of audience involvement, number of active participants, need for pre-registration, ...) depends on the specific focus of the workshop and organizer preferences. Not all parts of a workshop have to be recorded, but we would appreciate to have some recordings to make the workshop available for people not actively participating in the workshop too.
The workshop proposal should contain a brief motivation of the workshop, an intended outline (including format, length, etc.) of the workshop, and a list of organizers and faculty members facilitating the event. Maximum length of the proposal is 1,000 words.

The submission deadline for workshop proposals is Monday, October 19, 2020.

Please submit your workshop proposal to eiba@wu.ac.at.

Call for Reviewers

We invite volunteers to register as reviewers for the EIBA2020 conference. Reviewers can expect to be sent maximum three manuscripts to review soon after the submission deadline for papers and all reviews should be completed by October 12th. The quality of academic meetings depends critically on the invaluable input and presence of the reviewers of the papers – so we fully realize how dependent we are on our able volunteers in this regard. You will be able to register as a reviewer for EIBA 2020 online at www.eiba.online.
